Collegians Took the First of the Series of Games By Two Runs.

Keane's Long Drive When Bases . Were Full Gives Game to Visitors.

Keane's ripping three-sacker in the ighth inning when the bases were filled won the first of the series of games Collegians and the champlen Brownles Two men were on bases when the left fielder for the Norfolk aggregation just far enough in to be called a safe was playing in for the batter when the was playing in for the batter when the swat came. Three men spiked the rub-ber, while Keane was making the circuit to third. Owens, who followed Keane, dropped an easy one down to Authony on first and the side was retired, but not Until the eighth inning it was veritably Until the eighth inning it was veritably a pitchers' battle, for Leake, for the home team, and Leonard, for the visitors, were getting such peculiar twists in the ball that the batters were puzzled. But when the inning next to the ninth came, the Norfolk boys fell on Leake for four swats and one of the four—the last one—was sent out with a ticket for three sacks. Leonard allowed four hits, one in the sixth and another in the sixth and another in the seventh. Leake had only two hits against him until the fatal inning.

Sharp smacked one to short and Bowers died at second, but McEvoy had ambled down to third and MeEvoy had ambled down to third and the batter was safe at first. J. Anthony sent a slow one to short and on the throw to first, MeEvoy scored. Albert Anthony tore off a clean single, scoring Sharp. Eacho nalled one, but the left fielder was in the way, and it didn't touch

How It All Happened.

The Collegians started off in the fifth by sending Smith to the bat. He was given a complimentary ticket entitling him to a seat on the first sack. Twirler Leanard ozoned and Churns sent one down to Sharp, who tossed it wilg when attempting to make a double. Both men were safe.

Armstrong bunted towards third and beat the bunt out. McEvoy, in attempting to catch Smith, threw the ball wild and one rith came over. On the bad play another man spiked the rubber. Lawler batted to Leake, who caught Armstrong at second and Eache transferred the ball to first in time to kill the runner.

Two bases on balls, two passed balls and an error gave the Brownies one run in the opening of the eighth. The score was three to two in favor of the home team when the Collegians stepped to hat in their half of the inning before the last one. Churns, who before in the game, had pasted a safe one, duplicated the trick. Armstrong followed and straighted out one of Leake's benders, Lawler fanned the atmosphere and Churns took a lead off second. Elmore ran up and sent the ball to short, who sent it to third and Churns took the cemetery road. Barry drew four and walked. White resided a single and the bases were sent the ball to short, who sent it to third and Churns took the cemetery road. Barry drew four and walked. White pasted a single and the bases were crowded with the runners, but there were two men out an no one took the matter very seriously. Keane sent several fouls around and one of them dropped behind the catcher, but near the grand stand. Elmore couldn't got it and the next one suited Keane's eye, He struck just a fraction late and the horsehide went out to right garden. Norfolk's supporters broke into one cheer that lasted for minutos, for three runners were coming across.

With only one more inning in which to play and get back the two runs to tid the score of the three to win, the Brownies sent Sharp to bat the lifted one to left garden, but Keane happened to be there. J. Anthony good one down to Leonard, who tossed it to first. The decision was close, and Umpire Duke ran down to the base to better watch the catch. Just as the umpire turned his back and sturted towards the center of the direction the baseman's haids and threw it out to right field. And while the baseman was getting it. Anthony had reached third. But he died there, for Eacho couldri-connect with Learnerd's benders. The Norfolk team played good hall with the exception of two innings: The score follows:

The Two Twenty-Four Trot a Magnificent Bit of Sport.

NORFOLK, VA., August 1.-The sec ond annual State fair and races of the Norfolk Horse Show and Fair Associayear by more than a thousand persons, and the racing was high classed. The track was fast. Trains brought in ex-cursionists from all parts of Virginia and North Carolina, and the beach hotels were emptied of their summer visitors and the most sanguine hopes of the man-agement were exceeded.

The features of to-day's card were the 2:22 class trot, for a purse of $100 and the 2:14 pace, purse $500. J. R. Jarvis and Son's Orphan Girl won the former and M. H. White's Conroy the latter. The races were well worthy of the tra-ditions of such events not only here, but at any of the tracks this side of New York.

Sandwiched between the heats were many innovations, including a race between an ostrich and horse, both in harness. The horse won.

Robert Taylor, of Baltimore, and his high-jumpling horse, Gray Rock, gave a magnificent exhibition. The beautiful golding took the bars at six feet two inches; the throng yelled in approval, and the band struck up "My Maryland." A GREAT RACE.

Starter R. E. Biggs, of Baltimore, raised the curtain on the races, in calling the 2:24 trot. Bieven horses started, and there was some grumbling when it was announced that Orphan Girl (winner of the race), who did not appear on the card, was included in the bunch. This was subsequently explained in an official statement that the entry had been delayed in transit. Kushan won the first heat, and Orphan Girl the second and third, and it looked as though the mare would be handed the fourth on a silver platter, but such was not the outcome.
